Medical.

Baltimore Lock Hospital.

DR. JOHNSTON,
Physician of this celebrated Institution, has Discovered the most Certain, Speedy, Pleasant and Effectual Remedy in the World for all DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE.
Weakness of the Back of Limbs, Strictures, Affection of the Kidneys or Bladder, Involuntary Discharges, Impotency, General Debility, Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Languor, Low Spirits, Confusion of Ideas, Palpitation of the Heart, Timidity, Trembling, Dimness of Sight or Giddiness, Disease of the Head, Throat, Nose or Skin, Affections of the Liver, Lungs, Stomach or Bowels—those terrible Disorders arising from Solitary Habits of Youth—secret and solitary practices more fatal to their victims than the song of the Syrens to the Mariners of Ulysses, blighting their most brilliant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage, &c., impossible.
YOUNG MEN
Especially, who have become the Victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence or waked to ecstacy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.
MARRIAGE.
Married persons, or Young Men contemplating marriage, aware of Physical Weakness (Loss of Procreative Power—Impotency), Nervous Excitability, Palpitation, Organic Weakness, Nervous Debility, or any other Disqualification, speedily relieved.
He who places himself under the care of Dr. J. may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a physician.
ORGANIC WEAKNESS,
IMPOTENCY, LOSS OF POWER,
Immediately Cured and Full Vigor Restored.
This distressing Affection—which renders life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgences. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged, the Physical and Mental Functions weakened, Loss of Procreative Power, Nervous Irritability, Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Constitutional Debility and Wasting of the Frame, Cough, Consumption, Decay and Death.
A CURE WARRANTED IN TWO DAYS.
Relief in six Hours! No Mercury!
Persons Ruined by Ignorant, Trifling Pretenders and their Deadly Poisons, should apply immediately.
DR. JOHNSTON,
Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate of one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubled with ringing in the head and ears when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, bashfulness, with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.
TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.
Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either business, study, society or marriage.
These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by the early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and limbs, Pains in the Head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption, &c.
MENTALLY.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded. Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil Forebodings, Aversion to Society, Self-Distrust, love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced.
Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health, losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of Consumption.
YOUNG MEN
Who have injured themselves by a certain practice, indulged in when alone, a habit frequently learned from evil companions or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.
What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the pride of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyment of life by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons must, before contemplating
MARRIAGE,
Reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial happiness.—Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view, the mind becomes shadowed with despair, and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another is blighted with our own.
DISEASE OF IMPRUDENCE.
When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease makes their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity, till at last the palate of the mouth or the bones of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commiseration till death puts a period to his dreadful suffering, by sending him to that undiscovered country "from whence no traveller returns."
It is a melancholy fact that thousands DIE victims to this terrible disease, through falling into the hands of Ignorant or unskillful PRETENDERS, who, by the use of that deadly Poison, Mercury, &c., destroy the constitution, and incapable of curing, keep the unhappy sufferer month after month taking their noxious or injurious compounds, and instead of being restored to a renewal of Life, Vigor and Happiness, in despair leave him with ruined Health to sigh over his galling disappointment.
To such, therefore, Dr. JOHNSTON pledges himself to preserve the most Inviolable Secrecy, and from his extensive practice and observations in the great Hospitals of Europe, and the first in this country, viz: England, France, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, is enabled to offer the most Certain, Speedy and Effectual Remedy in the World for all Diseases of Imprudence.

left hand side going from Baltimore street, a few doors from the corner. Fail not to observe name and number.

There are so many Paltry, Designing and Worthless Imposters advertising themselves as Physicians, trifling with and ruining the health of all who unfortunately fall into their power, that Dr. Johnston deems it necessary to say especially to those unacquainted with his reputation that his Credentials or Diplomas always hang in his office
ENDORSEMENT OF THE PRESS.
The many thousands cured at this Establishment, year after year and the numerous important Surgical Operations performed by Dr. Johnston witnessed by the representatives of the press and many other persons, notices of which have appeared again and again before the public, besides his standing as a gentleman of character and responsibility, is a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted.

MASTER BEACH AND WILLIE SMITH.

SAID master Beach to Willie Smith,
"Your hand, sir, in a twinkling."
Said Willie Smith to master Beach,
"Twill hurt, sir, I'am thinking.

"And, if 'twill answer just as well,
I'll give my hand to Lilly Bell;
You know 'twon't hurt me near so bad,
And Lilly, dear, will be so glad."

The master looked so sweet,
As if he'd just been kissed;
And said in milder tones,
"The school is now dismissed."

BETRAYED BY A BUCKLE.

It was a bitter disappointment, after years of poverty, to find the fortune which I had thought my own, suddenly wrested from me by a stranger. I was my uncle's legal heir, for he died childless, as all the world believed, and on hearing of the old man's death, I forgave him his long neglect, and waited eagerly to receive the welcome news of my good fortune. To my dismay, the lawyers wrote me that a daughter had appeared, whose claim could neither be doubted or set aside; the property was rightfully hers, and I was a poor artist still.

Years before I had heard of my uncle's marriage, and the birth and death of a little child; he himself died rather suddenly and left no will, but his last words were:

"Be just—give all to Cecil," and those about him believed that he meant me till this beautiful girl appeared, claiming to be his child, and proving that her name was Cecelia, which gave a new meaning to those words, uttered with great earnestness and evident distress of mind.

The girl made out her case and won it, for I was too poor to fight against such odds, and all was settled before I could earn enough to leave Italy for home. I resolved to see this unknown cousin before I relinquished all hope, however, for a hint dropped by my old lawyer suggested the possibility of yet winning a share at least of my uncle's handsome fortune.

I was young, comely, accomplished, and the possessor of a good name, to which my talent had already added some honor.—Why not woo this bonny cousin, and still be master of the wealth I had been taught to think my own?

The romance of the thing pleased me, and as soon as my engagements permitted I was in England. Desiring to judge for myself, after hearing the dry facts from the lawyers, I went down to the hall, unannounced, meaning to play the unknown artist till satisfied that it was wise to confess the truth.

Armed with a note of introduction from a friend of my uncle's, I presented myself as one desirous of copying a certain fine Titian in the gallery. Miss Stanhope was out, but I was permitted to examine the pictures while waiting her return. Among the old family portraits was a half-finished one, evidently the young mistress, and I examined it with eagerness.

A very lovely face, yet something marred its beauty. At first I thought it was my own prejudice; but setting aside any natural bitterness of feeling, and regarding it as a work of art alone, I could not escape from the odd fancy that those imperious eyes could flash with a baleful light, that smiling, red mouth might betray with a kiss, and that dimpled hand lead a man to perdition. The warm brown of the luxuriant hair, the smooth curves of the uncovered neck and arms, and the soft, rich coloring of the dress, gave a sumptuous and seductive grace to the well painted picture, the charm of which I felt in spite of myself.

Quite forgetting the Titian, I leaned back in the depths of a luxurious couch, with my eyes fixed on the likeness of my future wife, as I already called my cousin, in the reverie to which I surrendered myself.

A low laugh startled me to my feet, and made me stare in dumb surprise at the apparition before me. The picture seemed to have stepped from its frame, for there in the arched doorway against a background of soft gloom was Miss Stanhope. The same imperious eyes fixed full upon me, the red lips smiling archly, the floating hair, half golden in the streak of light that fell athwart her head and touched the white shoulder, the same dimpled hands, lightly folded, and the same rosy muslins blowing in the wind, that revealed glimpses of the same delicate foot just outlined in the picture.

I was so startled by her abrupt appearance, her strange laughter, and my own contending emotions, that all my wonted composure forsook me, and not one of the smooth speeches prepared for the interview came to my lips.

Bowing silently, I stood like an awkward lout till she completed my confusion by advancing with outstretched hand, saying, in a deliciously cordial tone:

"Welcome, cousin; your little plot was well laid; but a woman is hard to deceive, especially when such a tell-tale face as your's tries to put on a mask."

As she spoke she pointed to a mirror which reflected both my own figure and that of a gay and gallant ancestor, whose handsome face showed the most marked features of our race. I saw the likeness at once, for my moustache, curling hair, and velvet paletot added to the effect most strikingly.

Something in the compliment, as well as her own frank air, restored my self-possession, and, eager to remove all recollection of my guacherie, I joined in her laughter, saying, gaily, as I kissed her hand with the Italian devotion that women like:

"A thousand pardons for attempting to deceive these bright eyes; but the banished prince longed to see the new queen, and so ventured home in disguise."

"I forgive the ruse, because you say home in a tone that betrays in you the same solitude that I feel. It is a large, lonely house. There is room enough for both, and as we are the last of our race, why not cease to be strangers and both come home?"

Nothing could have been more sweet and simple than look, voice and manner as she said this. It touched me, and yet the vague feeling of distrust born of my scrutiny of both the painted and living face still lingered in my mind, and robbed my answer of the warmth it should have possessed.

"Miss Stanhope forgets that I have lost my right to take shelter here. But since I have seen her my disappointment is much softened, because for a woman young and beautiful it would be far harder to work for bread than for a man whose bosom friends for years have been poverty and solitude."

She looked at me with a sudden dew in those proud eyes of hers, and for a moment stood silent, with the color varying in her cheeks; then, as if obeying a generous impulse, she smiled, and looking up at me, said, in a tone whose persuasive gentleness was irresistible:

"Cousin Cecil, promise to stay one week, and learn to know me better, I ask it as a favor; and since you possess the Stanhope pride, you shall make me your debtor by finishing this picture. The artist who began it will not return; for his own sake I forbid it."

A disdainful little gesture told the story of the cause of this banishment as plainly as words, and was, perhaps, a warning hint to me. I smiled at it, even while I felt as the fisher might have done when Lorelie first began to charm.

"I will stay," I briefly said, and then she asked me about my life in Italy, so pleasantly beguiling confidence from me that if I had possessed a secret it would inevitably have passed into her keeping.

I staid, and day after day we sat in the long gallery, surrounded by beauty of all kinds, talking with ever increasing frankness, while I painted this lovely cousin, who bewildered my senses without touching my heart.

The old lady who played duenna left us free, and little company disturbed the charming solitude that never lost its delight to me.

A whim had seized Cecelia to change the costume in the portrait from modern to ancient, and as the dress of a beautiful ancestress was still preserved, she put it on, enhancing her beauty fourfold by the rich brocades, the antique jewels, and priceless laces of past days.

"This little shoe must have a buckle if it is to be visible, as I beg it may be," I said, as she came rustling in one morning like a grande dame of the olden time.

"Bring the steel bound casket, Adele; we may find something there that will suit this masquerade," said Cecelia to the maid who held her train.

Slipping off the coquettish shoe of white silk with a scarlet heel, she let me amuse myself with trying which of many ornaments would suit best, while she absently clasped and unclasped the bracelets on her round arm.

"This is in perfect taste, and a picture in itself," I presently exclaimed, holding up the little shoe ornamented with a green buckle of chased silver, set here and there with a diamond, and a true lover knot formed of a double S in the middle.

"That is one of the very buckles our gallant ancestors wore. You can see them in the picture yonder, and the story goes that they were given him by his lady-love," answered Cecelia pointing to the portait of Sir Sidney Stanhope hanging behind us.

This little fact led me to examine the trinkets with interest, and having put it into the silken shoe, I fell to painting it while my lovely sitter amused me with old legends of our family.

The week had lengthened to three, and I still lingered, for it was evident that my cousin, with a woman's generosity, was willing to make the only reparation in her power. I felt sure that the idea came to her that first day, when, after the long pause, she bade me stay, with varying color and wet eyes, betraying pity, interest, and the dawning affection of a lonely heart quick to feel the ties of family. I tried to love her, and grew feverish in my efforts to discover why, in spite of the fascination of her presence, I could not yield my heart wholly to her power. What cause had I to distrust this beautiful and generous girl?—None; and yet I did, so much so that I found myself watching her with a curious persistence, as if some subtle instinct warned me to beware.

This habit, and the restlessness which possessed me, led me to roam about the house and grounds by night when all was quiet. My out of door life in Italy made this freedom necessary to me, and I indulged my whim so skillfully that no one but the watch-dogs suspected it—they knew me, and kept my secret.

One evening twilight overtook me at my easel, and the summons to dinner left Cecelia no time to change her dress. Laughing at the strange contrast between our costumes, I led her to the table, and as I watched the brilliant figure opposite me, I resolved to know my fate that night, and if I had deceived myself, to break away at once from the spell that was increasing daily.

As soon as we were alone again, I led her out along the terrace, and as we paced there, arm-in-arm, I told her my hope and waited for her reply. A strange expression of relief dawned in her face as she looked up at me with eyes full of a tender melancholy.

"I hoped you would tell me this. Do not think it unmaidenly, but believe that I saw no other way of sharing this good fortune with you," she said in a voice curiously calm for such confessions.

"But, dear, I will have no sacrifice for me. If you love me, I accept the rest; otherwise not a penny will I touch," I said, decidedly, for her manner disturbed me.

"If I love you," she cried, "how could I help it when you are all I have in the wide world to keep me from——"

There she caught back some word that trembled on her lips, and threw herself into my arms, weeping passionately.

Annoyed, yet touched, I soothed her, hoping to receive some explanation of this sudden outburst, which seemed more like remorseful grief than happy love. But quickly recovering herself, she murmured, brokenly;

"I have been so alone all my life—exiled from home, I knew not why—kept in ignorance of parents and friends till all were gone—my youth has been so sad that happiness overcomes me."

Here her little maid came to deliver a note; Cecelia stepped into the stream of light which lay across the terrace from the long, open window of the drawing-room, read a few lines that seemed scrawled on a rough bit of paper, told Adele to say she would come to-morrow, and tearing the note to atoms, she rejoined me, saying carelessly:

"A message from Elspeth, my old nurse, who is ill, and sends for me."

I thought nothing of the note, but why did her heart beat so fast as I drew her to me again? Why were her eyes so absent, her face so full of mingled anger, fear and contempt? And why did she shiver as if, to her, the sultry summer night had sudenly grown cold? But when I asked what troubled her, she shyly said she was agitated by happiness alone, then led me in and sang delightfully till bedtime. As we parted for the night she fixed her eyes on me with a strangely tragic look, and whispered in her sweetest tone:

"Sleep well, Cecil, and be sure I love you."

I went to my room, but did not sleep at all, for my thoughts worried me, and as soon as the house was still I stepped out of my window and roamed away into the park. A storm was gathering, and black clouds swept across the moon, making fitfull light and shade; a hot wind blew strongly, and flashes of lightning darted from the gloomy west. The unquiet night suited my mood, and I wandered on, lost in my own thoughts, till a peal of thunder roused me. Looking about for shelter, as I was now a long way from the hall, I saw a steady gleam not far distant and making my way to the bottom of a wild glen, I found a little hovel half hidden among the trees.

Peering in at the window before I asked admittance, I saw, by the dim light of one candle, an old crone sitting on the hearth, her withered face turned attentively toward another figure which stood nearer the door—a woman, evidently, though so shrouded in a cloak that age or sex was hard to guess. Her back was turned toward me, her voice fierce and low, her attitude one of command, and the words she uttered so peculiar that they arrested my attention at once:

"If you dare to speak or show yourself till I give you leave, I will silence you in the surest way. I fear nothing, and having played the perilous game so far, I will not be robbed of success, when it is dearest, by the threats of a helpless old woman."

"Not so helpless as you think, ungrateful girl; feeble, old, and forgotten as I am, I can undo what I have done by a word, and I will, I swear, if you are not kinder," cried the old woman in a shrill, angry voice. "You promised I should stay with you, should have every care and comfort, and receive a generous share of all you got; but now you keep me here in this unwholesome place, with no one to speak to but half-witted Kate; you never come till I scare you into obedience, and you will give me nothing but a paltry pound now and then. You know I'm too lame to escape, and you threaten me if I complain; but hark you, my lady, I set you up and I can pull you down whether you murder me or not, for it's all on paper, safe hidden from you, but sure to come to light if anything goes wrong with me."

As the old woman paused, breathless with her wrath and exultation, the younger stamped her foot with uncontrollable impatience, and clinched the slender white hand that was visible, but her next words were kinder, though bitter contempt lurked in her tone.

"You may trust me, grandmother; I'll not harm you unless you rouse the mad temper which I cannot control. You know why I do not take you home till my own place is secure. You are old; you forget, and babble of things safer untold. Here, it can make no trouble for either of us, but with me, surrounded by curious servants, mischief would come to both. Can you not wait a little longer, and remember that in undoing me you assuredly ruin yourself, since you are the greater criminal."

"It would go hard with both of us, but my age would serve me better than your beauty, for I can be humble but you have the pride of a devil, and death itself could not bend it. I'll wait, but I must have money my fair share; I like to see and touch it, to make sure of it, for you may deceive me as you do the world, and slip away, leaving me to pay the penalty while you enjoy the pleasure."

"You shall have it as soon as I can get it without exciting suspicion by the demand. An opportunity will soon come, and I will not forget you."

"You mean this marriage?"

"Yes."

"Then you will really do it?"

"I will, for I love him."

"Good! that makes all safe. Now go, child, before the storm breaks, but come often, or I will send for you, and if there be any sign of false play my story goes to this man, and I'll buy my own safety by betraying you."

"Agreed. Good night," and the shrouded figure was gone like a shadow.

I meant to follow it, led by an uncontrollable impluse, but as I paused to let her gain a safe distance, the movement of the old woman arrested me. Nodding and mumbling with weird intelligence, she lifted one of the flat hearthstones and drew out a packet of papers, over which she seemed to gloat, muttering as she peered over the scrawled pages:

"I'm old, but I'm wary, and not to be shaken off till I get my share of plunder. She thinks to scare me, but Kate knows where to find my secret if anything goes wrong with me. I've tutored her, and my lady will be outwitted at last."

Chuckling, the old crone put her treasure back, and, raking up the fire, hobbled away to bed. I waited till her light was out, resolving to secure those papers, for I could not divest myself of the conviction that this secret concerned me. I had not caught a glimpse of the younger woman's face; the voice was unknown, the figure hidden, and the white hand might have belonged to any lady, yet I felt a strong suspicion that this mysterious woman was Cecelia and this evil minded beldame was old Elspeth.

The storm broke, but I did not heed it, for my new purpose absorbed me. As soon as all was still I gently forced the low lattice, stepped in, and groping my way to the hearth stirred the smouldering embers till a little blaze shot up, showing me the flat stone, and glittering also on an object that brought confirmation to my dark suspicions, for there, where the unknown girl had stood, lay the silver buckle. I caught it up, examined it by the dim light, and could not doubt my own eyes; it was Sir Sidney's antique ornament, and that impatient gesture of Cecelia's foot had left it here to betray her. I could readily understand how in her eagerness to slip away she had hastily changed the brocades for a simpler dress, forgetting to remove the shoes. Now I was sure of my right to seize the papers, and having done so stole noiselessly away.

Till dawn the storm raged furiously, and till dawn I sat in my room reading, thinking and resolving, for those badly written pages showed me that the future I had pictured to myself never could be mine. The charm was broken, the warning instinct justified, and an impassable gulf opened between my cousin and myself. As the sun rose my plan was laid, and making a careful toilet, I tried to remove from my face, also, all trace of that night's experience, but did not entirely succeed, for the glass showed me a pale cheek, eyes full of a gloomy fire, and lips sternly set.

I often breakfasted alone, for Cecelia kept luxurious hours, and we seldom met till noon. That day I waited impatiently in the gallery where we had agreed to have a last sitting. My impatience did me good service, however, for when at last she came my paleness was replaced by a feverish warmth, and the stern lips had been trained to meet her with a smile.

"Good morning, Cecil," she said, with an enchanting glance and a conscious blush as she gave me her hand.

I did not kiss it as usual, but holding it loosely I examined the soft little fingers outstretched in my palm, wondering as I did so if they could be the same I last night saw so fiercely clenched.

"What is it?" she asked, looking up at me with playful wonder in the eyes now grown soft.

"Perhaps I was thinking of the ring that should be here," I answered, feeling a curious desire to test the love of this unhappy girl.

"I never thought I should consent to wear even so small a fetter as a wedding-ring, I love my liberty so well; but if you put it on it will not burden me, for you will be a tender and generous master, Cecil," she answered, turning toward her accustomed seat to hide the emotion she was too proud to show me.

"I have the faults of my race—an unbending will, an unforgiving spirit, and 'the pride of a devil,' so beware, cousin."

She started as I quoted the old woman's phrase and shot a quick glance at me, but I was tranquilly preparing my palette, and she sat down with a relieved, yet weary air.

"Could you be as unmerciful as old Sir Guy, who cursed his only child for deceiving him?" she asked, lifting her eyes to the portrait of a stern-faced cavalier hanging next debonnair Sir Sidney.

"I could, for treachery turns my heart to stone."

I saw a slight shiver pass over her, and leaning her head on her hand she sat silent while I touched up a jewel here, silken fold there, or added a brighter gold to the beautiful hair. She looked fair, young and tender, but, as I had said, treachery turned my heart to stone, and I did not spare her.

"You are triste to day, sweetheart; let me amuse you as you have often done me by a legend of our family. I lately found it in an old manuscript which I will show you by-and by."

"Thanks; I like old stories if they are strong and tragic," she answered with a smile, as she lay back in the great chair in an attitude of luxurious indolence.

"Why, you have forgotten the little shoe; I meant to touch up the brilliant buckle and add a deeper scarlet to the coquettish heel. Shall I bid Adele bring it?" I asked, looking from the black satin slipper to the tranquil face lying on the purple cushion.

"No, it hurt my foot and I threw it away in a pet," she answered, with a little color.

"Not buckle and all, I hope, that is an heirloom."

"I have it safe, but the painted one is so well done I will not have it touched. Let my eyes outshine my jewels, as you gallantly averred they did, and tell your tale while you paint, for I am sadly indolent today."

As she added falsehood to falsehood, my heart beat indignantly against the traitorous ornament safely hidden in my breast, but my face did not betray me, and I obeyed her, glancing up from time to time to mark the effect of my words, not that of my work, for I painted with a colorless brush.

"Sir Marmaduke, for whom our uncle was named, I fancy was a stern man who married late, and treated his wife so ill that she left him, taking with her their little child, for being a girl, the old man had no love for it. Both the poor things died in a foreign land, and Sidney yonder, the comely nephew, was the lawful heir to the estate. The last words of the old man seemed to express his wish that it should be so, and the nephew was about to claim his own when the daughter reappeared and proved her right to the fortune. You are pale, love—does my dull story weary you?"

"No, it is only the heat. Go on, I listen," and half hiding the tell-tale cheek with her hand, she sat with downcast eyes, and a face that slowly grew a colorless mass with the effort to subdue emotion.

"The old manuscript is not very clear on this point; but I gather that the neglected girl's reported death was only a ruse to shield her from her cruel father. Her claim was accepted, and poor Sidney left to poverty again. Now comes the romance of the tale. He went to see this new found cousin: she was beautiful and gracious, seemed eager to share her prize, and offered the young man a home. This touched and won him. She soon evidently loved him, and in spite of an inward distrust, fancied he would return the passion."

As I slightly emphasized a word here and there in that last sentence, a fiery glow spread over that white white face from neck to brow, the haughty eyes flashed full upon me, and the red lips trembled as if passionate words were with difficulty restrained. I saw that my shaft told, and with resentful coolness I went on, still preserving the gay, light tone that made the truth doubly bitter and taunting.

"Take the fan that lies in your lap, dearest; this heat oppresses you. Yes, it is very curious to read how this lover was fascinated in spite of himself, and how he fought against his doubts till he tried to put an end to them by asking the hand extended to him."

The dimpled hand lying on the top of the chair was clinched suddenly, and I saw again the hand of the cloaked woman in the wood, and smiling to myself at this new confirmation, I continued:

"But here begins the tragedy which you like so well. The cousins betrothed, and that very night Sidney, who was given to late wanderings, went out to dream a lover's dreams, in spite of a gathering storm which drove him for shelter to a little cottage in the wood. Here he overheard a strange conversation between an old creature and a mysterious woman whose face he could not see." (How her eyes glittered as she listened! and what a long breath of relief escaped her at those last words!) "This lively gossip excited Sidney's curiosity, and when the lady vanished, leaving this traitor behind her," (here I produced the buckle,) "this bold young man, guided by the mutterings of the crone, found a strange confession of the treachery of both."

Here Cecelia rose erect in her chair, and from that moment her eyes never left my face as she listened, still colorless as the statue behind her. I think she showed no sign of weakness or remorse, and her indomitable pride roused mine, making me pitiless. Brush and palette lay idle now, and looking straight at the fair false face before me, I rapidly ended the story which I had begun in the disguise of an ancient legend.

"It seems that the old woman had been the confidential servant of Sir Marmaduke's wife, and had a grudge of her own against her master. When my lady and the child died, for die they did, as reported, this woman bided her time, artfully securing letters, tokens, and other proofs, to use when the hour came. At Sir Marmaduke's death she put forward her grandchild, the natural daughter of the old man, inheriting both the beauty and the spirit of her race. This girl played her part well; the plot succeeded, and if the sordid nature of the granddame had not irritated the heiress and kept her in danger of discovery, all would have worked admirably. Half justice, under the guise of generosity, soothed whatever pangs of remorse the girl felt, and as she loved Sidney, she believed that she could expiate the wrong she did him by keeping him happily blind to the treachery of a wife he trusted. A terrible mistake, for when he discovered this deceit, the old distrust turned to contempt, gratitude to wrath, and love to loathing."

"Possessing something of the chivalry of his race, he disdained to crush her even by one approach; but though forced to decline the proposed alliance he freely offered her safety and maintenance, never forgetting that in spite of deceit, and sin, and shame, she was a woman and his cousin."

"Did he think she would accept?" she cried lifting the head that had sunk lower and lower as I spoke till all the warm hued hair swept to her feet.

I had risen and looked down at her with the uncontrollable pity softening my stern face. I answered briefly:

"Yes, for where else could she find help but at the hands of her kinsman?"

She sprang up, as if my compassion was more bitter to hear than my contempt, the fiery spirit rebelled against me, and love itself yielded to the pride that ruled her.

"Not even the offer of a favor will I accept from you, for I have a kinder friend to fly to. Take your rightful place, and enjoy it if you can, haunted as it must be by the memory of the stain I have brought upon the name you are so proud of."

She hurried, as if to leave me, but pausing at the easel, cast a sudden look at the smiling image of herself, and as if anxious to leave no trace behind, she caught up my palette-knife, scored the canvass up and down till it hung in stripes; then with a laugh which echoed long in my ears she swept slowly down the long gallery, passed through the wide window at the further end of the balcony that over hung the court below, and standing there with the sunshine streaming over her, she looked back at me with an expression which fixed that moment in my memory for ever.

Like a brillant, she stood there with the light full on her shining hair, jeweled arms, rich robes, and stateyl form, and contrasting sharply with the wild and woeful face looking backward with a mute farewell.

On that instant a terrible forboding of her purpose flashed over me, and I rushed forward to restrain her; but to late, for with a wave of the white hand she was gone.

Death was the kinder friend to whom she had flown, and when I found her in the court-yard, shattered by that cruel fall, she smiled the proud smile, and put away the hand that would have lifted her so tenderly.

"Let me die here; I have no other home," she whispered, faintly; then her face softened as she looked up at my pallid face, and feebly trying to fold her hands, she murmured, tenderly:

"Forgive me, for I loved you!"

Those were her last words, as they passed her lips, I saw nothing but a beautiful dead woman lying at my feet, and Sir Sidney's diamond buckle glittering in the sun, as it fell from my breast to receive a bloody stain which lingers still on that relic of my unhappy cousin.

LET THE CHILDREN ALONE.

Let your children alone when they gather around the family table. It is a cruelty to hamper them with manifold rules and regulations about this, and that, and the other. As long as their conduct is harmless as to others, encourage them in their cheeriness. If they do smack their lips, and their suppings of milk and other drinks can be heard across the street, it does not hurt the street; let them alone. What if they do take their soup with the wrong end of the fork, it is all the same to the fork; let them alone.

Suppose a child does not sit as straight as a ramrod at the table; suppose a cup or tumbler slips through its little fingers and deluges the plate of food below, and the goblet is smashed, and the table-cloth is ruined, do not look a thousand scowls and thunders, and scare the poor thing to the balance of its death, for it was scared half to death before. It "didn't go to do it."—Did you never let a glass slip through your fingers since you were grown? Instead of sending the child away from the table in anger, not even with a threat, for this or any other little nothing, be as generous as you would to an equal or superior guest, to whom you would say, with a more or less obsequious smile: "It's of no possible consequence." That would be the form of expression even to a stranger guest; and yet to your own child you remorselessly, and revengefully, and angrily, mete out a swift punishment, which for the time almost breaks its little heart and belittles you amazingly.

The proper and more efficient and more Christian method of meeting the mishaps and delinquencies and improprieties of your children at the table is either to take no notice of them at the time, or to go further, and divert attention from them at the very instant, if possible, or make a kind apology for them. But afterward, in an hour or two, or, better still, next day, draw the child's attention to the fault, if fault it was, in a friendly and loving manner; point out the impropriety in some kindly way; show where it was wrong or rude, and appeal to the child's self-respect or manliness. This is the best way to correct all family errors. Sometimes it may not succeed; sometimes harsh measures may be required; but try the deprecating or the kindly method with perfect equanimity of mind, and failure will be of rare occurrence.—From Dr. Hall's "Health by God's Living."

GOING HOME WITH THE GIRLS.—The entrance into society may be said to take place immediately after boyhood has passed away; yet a multitude take their initiative before their beards are presentable. It is a great trial either for a tender or a riper age. For an overgrown boy to go to a door, knowing well that there are a dozen girls inside, and knock or ring, with an absolute certainty that in a few moments all eyes will be upon him, is a severe test of courage. To go before these girls and make the tour of the room without stepping on their toes, and sit down and dispose of his hands without putting them in his pockets, is an achievement of which few boys can boast. If a boy can go so far as to measure off ten yards of tape with one of the girls, and cut it off at each end, he may stand a chance to spend a pleasant evening. Let him not flatter himself that the trials of the evening are over. Then comes the breaking up.—The dear girls don their hoods and put on their shawls, and look so saucy and mischievous, so unimpressible and independent, as if they did not wish anybody to go home with them. Then comes the pinch, and the boy who has the most pluck goes up to the prettiest girl in the room, with his tongue clinging to the roof of his mouth, and crooking out his elbow, stammers out the words, "Shall I see you home?" She touches her finger on his arm, and they walk home, feeling as awkward as two goslings.

A BEAUTIFUL ANECDOTE.—A happier illustration of the wonderful character of the Bible, and the facility with which even a child may answer by it the greatest of questions and solve the sublimest of mysteries, was never given than at an examination of a deaf and dumb institution some years ago in London. A little boy was asked in writing who made the world?

He took the chalk and wrote underneath the question: "In the Beginning God created the heavens and the earth."

The clergyman then inquired in a similar manner: "Why did Jesus Christ come into the world?"

A smile of delight and gratitude rested on the countenance of the little fellow as he wrote:

"This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners."

A third was then proposed, evidently adapted to call the most powerful feeling into exercise: "Why are you born deaf and dumb when I can hear and speak?"

"Never," said an eye witness, "can I forget the look of resignation that sat upon his countenance as he took the chalk and wrote: "Even so, Father, for it seemed good in Thy sight."

THE Presbyterian, in urging the importance of a natural and yet expressive manner of reading the Bible and hymns in the pulpit, mentions the case of a minister who read the lines

"The lambs He carries in His arms,
And in His bosom bears."

thus:

"The lambs He carries in His arms,
And in His bosom—bears."

We are indebted to Hon. Francis Jordan, Secretary of the Commonwealth, for an official copy of the General Laws passed during the last session of the Legislature. They are 49 in number. For the information of the readers of the "Star & Sentinel," we give an abstract of the provisions of such as are of general interest.

Act No. 5 imposes a fine not exceeding $100 on any baggage master, express agent, stage driver, hackman or other person, whose duty it is to handle, remove or take care of the baggage of passengers, who shall wilfully or recklessly injure or destroy any trunk, valise, box, package or parcel, while loading, transporting, unloading, delivering or storing the same.

No. 6 allows Writs of Error to the Supreme Court in all cases of Murder and Voluntary Manslaughter, as in civil cases. In cases of Murder in the first degree, the Supreme Court to review both the law and the evidence, and to determine whether the ingredients necessary to constitute murder in the first degree shall have been proved to exist; and if not so proved, then to reverse the judgment and send the same back for a new trial, or to enter such judgment as the laws of the Commonwealth require.

No. 12 imposes a fine not exceeding $2,000 and imprisonment not exceeding two years on witnesses in prosecutions for forgery, perjury or felony, who shall wilfully abscond, elope or conceal themselves to avoid testifying or defeat the ends of justice.

No. 13 exempts Sewing Machines used and owned by private families from levy and sale on execution or distress for rent.

No. 15 allows either husband or wife to testify in his or her own behalf in divorce cases.

No. 19 imposes a fine not exceeding $1,000 and imprisonment not exceeding six months for the printing or publishing of medicines, drugs, nostrums or apparatus for the cure of secret or venereal diseases, or for the cure of those diseases peculiarly appertaining to females; or the printing or publishing of any advertisement of any secret drug or nostrum, or the selling of the same by any druggist, for the purpose of preventing conception, or procuring abortion or miscarriage—the act not to apply to the publication of standard medical books nor to affect teaching in regular chartered medical colleges.

No. 22 provides for assessing the value of shares of stocks in banks and savings institutions, which are made taxable for State purposes at the rate of 3 mills, and for county, school, municipal and local purposes, at the same rates as now is or may hereafter be assessed and imposed upon other moneyed capital in the hands of individual citizens of this State. In case any bank or savings institution shall elect to collect annually, from the shareholders thereof, a tax of one per centum upon the par value of all the shares, and pay the same into the State Treasury, on or before the twentieth day of January in every year, the said shares, capital and profits shall be exempt from

No. 24 provides that in all actions or civil proceedings in any of the courts of this Commonwealth, brought by or against executors, administrators or guardians, or in actions where the assignor of the thing or contract in action may be dead, no interest or policy of law shall exclude any party to the record from testifying to matters occurring since the death of the person whose estate, through a legal representative, is a party to the record.

No. 27 extends the provisions of the 73d section of the "Act to consolidate, revise and amend the laws relating to penal proceedings and pleading," (in regard to judgments of outlawry, where persons indicted fail to appear or escape arrest,) to persons indicted for keeping or exhibiting any gaming table, device or apparatus to win or gain money or other property of value, or of engaging in gambling for a livelihood, or of aiding and assisting others to do the same, and also to any person who may be indicted for selling tickets or policies in any unlawful lottery.

No. 33 is a supplement to the Election laws, most of the provisions having reference to Philadelphia. Sections 6, 7, 9 and 10 are general, applying to the whole State. Sections 6 and 7 impose a fine not exceeding $500, and imprisonment not less than two nor more than three years in the penitentiary, upon persons not citizens of the State voting or attempting to vote at elections, and on persons persuading or prevailing on non-citizens to vote or attempting to vote. Sect. 9 imposes a fine not less than three months or more than one year on any person who shall unlawfully strike, wound or commit any assault and battery upon the person of any elector, at or near the election poll, during the holding of any election. Sect. 10 repeals all acts of Assembly limiting the right to vote or be registered to white persons, and provides for the registering of all freemen, without distinction of color, who, when otherwise qualified under existing laws, are to be entitled to vote.

No. 38 provides that manufacturers and mechanics, selling goods other than their own manufacture not exceeding $500 annually, shall not be required to pay license.

No. 42 is a supplement to the Militia Law, with a number of sections bearing on the organization of the active militia of the State, to be hereafter styled the "National Guard of Pennsylvania." Every person not exempt from military service under existing laws, and not a member of some military organization, must pay 50 cents annually, to be collected by the collectors of taxes, and to be paid over to the County Treasurer. Each member of an organization of the National Guard is to receive from the fund thus collected a sum not exceeding $12 annually. In counties where there is no military organization, the fund is to be divided among the several school districts of the county in proportion to the number of taxable inhabitants. In addition to exemptions now allowed by law, persons who have performed military duty in any military organization of the State for five years, or who enlisted for nine months or more in the active military service of the United States and were honorably discharged, are to be exempt from further military service except in case of war, invasion or insurrection, and also from serving as jurors.

No. 43 has reference to the State Treasurer and the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, &c., is intended to guard against the misuse of the public funds. The State Treasurer is to receive a salary of $5,000 and to give bond, with ten or more securities, in the sum of $500,000 for the faithful performance of his duties. The Treasurer is to certify to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund at the close of each month the balance due the Sinking Fund, the Commissioners to deposite the same in the Farmer's & Mechanic's National Bank of Philadelphia, and the Commissioners are to use the surplus fund above what is required to meet the interest on the public debt, in the monthly purchase of interest bearing indebtedness of the State, at current market rates. The Treasurer is also to make sworn monthly statements to the Auditor General. This Act, if properly administered, will prevent the accumulation in the Treasury of the large balances which have heretofore been a source of large revenue to the Treasurers and their favorites, and secure a more prompt liquidation of the interest bearing debt.

JAY COOKE, the eminent Philadelphia banker, has a way of his own in dispensing sun-shine along his pathway, using his princely income in noble charities and numberless kindly offices. He has a beautiful summer residence on an island in Lake Erie, to which he is in the habit of sending clerical friends for a few weeks enjoyment, paying the entire expenses of the trip. An invitation to accept his hospitality is accompanied by a ticket of prepaid fare over the railroads to and from the summer resort. Many clergymen of his own and other denominations have been privileged thus to enjoy his hospitalities. Mr. Cooke has also a magnificent residence near Philadelphia, were he has not only surrounded himself with all the superb luxury of a princely estate, but has also organized a system of systematic benevolence, which is extending its happy influences over the entire neighborhood. Besides a pretty chapel, neat school-house and commodious Hall, Mr. Cooke long ago established a class for the religious instruction of the working men of his own place and the vicinity, under his own personal direction, which has increased until it numbers nearly 150 members. Every spring this large Bible Class enjoys the privilege of a delightful fete champetre on the grounds. This annual festival came off last week, and from 6 o'clock in the morning until 6 in the evening, the company enjoyed themselves with varied amusements, Mr. Cooke himself leading in the sports with a hearty good-will. Besides base-ball, foot-ball, foot-races, quoits, and other athletic exercises, a magnificent dinner was served up, followed in the afternoon by ice-cream, cake and other luxuries. A brass band was in attendance all all day, the guests retiring laden with the welcome spoils of the day—Mr. Cooke himself, doubtless, being the happiest of them all.

THE Democracy of Delaware, where the whipping-post is still a favorite institution, take seriously to heart the abolition of its twin relic of barbarism, human slavery. Samuel Townsend, the representative of Delaware on the National Democratic Committee and a Democrat of the straightest sect, has resigned his position on the National Committee, saying he thinks the white people in the late slave States have had enough of northern pretended Democracy, high tariffs and other sectional measures, and that an attempt having been made to thrust Salmon P. Chase, the originator of negro franchise and the Fifteenth Amendment, on to the Democratic party as its candidate for President, their cup of disgrace has, by the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment, been filled to the brim. He insists that the Democratic party, being dead, ought to be buried, and another party, to be called the "White Man's Party," organized, and made sectional, directly to subserve the interests of white men in the late slave States, and the States bordering on and contiguous to the Pacific, where, he says, the Republicans are seeking power through the aid of Chinamen and Indian votes.

INTELLIGENCE from Rome leaves no room to doubt the American prelates, led by Archbishops Kenrick of St. Louis, Purcell of Cincinnati, Vevot of Savannah, and other high dignitaries in the American church, are against the dogma of Papal Infallibility.—Archbishop Spaulding, of Baltimore, will probably support the dogma. The latter having addressed a letter to Bishop Dupanloup, the distinguished French prelate who leads the liberal party, and quoted his predecessor, formerly Archbishop of Baltimore and now deceased, as endorsing Papal Infallibility, Archbishop Kenrick, the brother of the deceased Archbishop, is out in a letter controverting Archbishop Spaulding's statement. The position of the American ecclesiastics in the Council very naturally attracts much attention, and forms the topic of most letter writers from Rome and is largely discussed by European journals. The main strength of the Infallibility dogma is with the Italian prelates, who constitute the dominant wing of the Council and will probably carry it through, despite the opposition of the liberal party and the protestation of Catholic European powers. If thus carried, its most probable consequences will be agitated and dissension in the Catholic church.

SCHŒPPE is not likely to have his case reviewed by the Supreme Court. The Act which allows a writ of error to the Supreme Court, with authority to examine the facts as well as the law, was passed over the Governor's veto on the 15th day of February, whereas the Supreme Court had disposed of the first writ of error the day before, on the 14th. The case came before the Court again on Friday on a writ to review the evidence taken during the trial, in accordance with the act of the Legislature on the subject. Counsel for the State contended that the case had been concluded in Court before the enactment of the law. Chief Justice Thompson said that he held the same opinion, and could not see how the judgment of the Court could be re-opened. The case was finally postponed until the 23d instant, when this point will be argued.

IN defiance of public opinion and in utter contempt of the spirit of the age, Democratic Delaware persever in preserving that relic of barbarism, the whipping post. On Saturday last seven men were flogged at the whipping-post in New Castle, six colored and one white, for various petty larcenies. The Sheriff did the flogging, the sentences imposed ranging from 10 to 40 lashes on the bare back. These annual shows will continue until the Republicans get control of the State, which will probably be at the next election.

CONGRESS is moving slowly in its legislation. On Monday the House, apparently worried with the protracted Tariff debate, agreed to lay the Tariff bill aside until the Appropriation bills have been disposed of, which practically kills it for this session. On the same day Mr. Schenck reported the new Internal Revenue bill. It takes the taxes off nearly everything except fermented liquors, distilled spirits, tobacco, cigars and stamps and incomes. The tax on sales, except on liquor dealers, is abolished, as is also the tax on legacies and successions, gross receipts from railroads, corporations, etc., and the tax on the receipts of theatres and lotteries is retained. The income tax is fixed at 5 per cent., with an exemption of $1,500, but all the inquisitorial features of the tax are abolished. The tax on gas, pianos, carriages, watches, &c., is done away with. A tax of three per cent. per annum is levied on all public moneys deposited in banks. The amount reduced is about $33,000,000. Mr. Bingham's bill to enforce the 15th Amendment was passed by a strict party vote, yeas 121, nays 44. It goes to the Senate, where a more stringent bill, prepared by Senator Stewart, has been under consideration.

AN election took place in New York State on Tuesday, under the new Constitution, for Judges of the Supreme Court. But little interest was taken in the election, and the vote throughout the State was very light. The City gives a Democratic majority of about 60,000, which will be increased to 75,-000 in the State. The Republican strength lies in the rural districts. There was no Republican organization. Farmers were busy, and they let the election go by default. The result has no political significance. In the city of New York the Tammany candidates for local offices were successful over the Young Democracy and rival Democratic organizations.

THE opponents of the fifteenth Amendment in Illinois have dwindled down to nothing. General Cameron, a Democratic delegate in the late Constitutional Convention of that State, refused to participate in any factious fight made by his party against the recognition of the Fifteenth Amendment, and voted to make the Illinois Constitution conform to that of the Nation. No Democrat in that body took the responsibility of voting against this recognition, and those who did not vote for it absented themselves. The "white man's party" is likely to have trouble.

THE Republicans of Delaware hold a Convention in June to nominate a candidate for Governor. There is no doubt of the election of the nominee, as the colored vote will wipe out the Democrat majority in that State.

THERE are no State officers to elect in Pennsylvania this year, and there will consequently be no State Convention.

DECORATION DAY.

The following general order in reference to Decoration Day has been issued by John A. Logan, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic:

Headquarters Grand Army of the Republic, Adjutant General's Office, Washington, April 30, 1870:

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 8.

I. The annual ceremonies of "Memorial Day," which has been firmly established by national choice and consent, will take place on Monday, the thirtieth day of May.

II. All Departments, Districts, Posts and Comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic, wherever dispersed throughout the land, will unite in such manner, and with such ceremonies for the proper observance of the day as may be best suited to each respective locality, and all organizations, communities, and persons whose grateful aid, sympathy and prayers sustained us throughout the dark days of the nation's peril, and those whose loyal, patriotic hearts beat in unison with our own, and who have heretofore, or may hereafter, join with us in the observance of this National Memorial Day, are hereby cordially invited to unite, and are earnestly requested to lend their aid and assistance in strewing the pure garlands of Spring, that come with votive memories of love and prayer o'er the mounds that mark the country's altar, and fold in rest eternal our martyred dead.

This is the third public observance of a day which has become marked and hallowed for this sacred occasion. Many are now missing from our ranks who were with us before. Time, with busy finger, counts the hours for all. "In the midst of life we are in death," and one by one our veterans are "mustered out" to join the Grand Army on high. Let this teach us that we should so live that when we too are gone, it can be said: He was a citizen, a soldier, and comrade, "without fear, and without reproach."

III. It is desirable that the memorial services may be preserved, and Department and Post Commanders will forward direct to the Adjutant General at National Headquarters a record of such proceedings as may occur in each locality. Should the same appear in the press, or by pamphlet, a duplicate corrected copy is requested.

JOHN A. LOGAN,
Commander-in-Chief.

RESULTS OF FREE LABOR.—It now appears that the sugar and rice crops of Louisiana were much larger last year than hitherto reported. In the twenty-seven parishes in the State 87,090 hogsheads of sugar were raised, or nearly three thousand more than in 1868. The rice crop last year was the largest ever raised in the State, amounting to considerably over one hundred thousand barrels. With such signal results, so immediately following the overthrow of slavery, our Southern countrymen are able to form some idea of the great benefits which will accrue to them where the free labor system has been fully established. Never was a truer remark than that made by Henry A. Wise, not long since, that slavery had been the bane and curse of the Southern States.

LAY DELEGATION.—The East Maine Conference voted on Saturday forty-three for and fourteen against lay delegation. The Germany and Switzerland conference is yet to vote. It is understood that body will vote unanimously for the measure; but the present majority for lay delegation is more than the entire vote of that Conference, so that the question is now settled that lay delegates will be in the next General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which will meet in Brooklyn, N. Y. March 1st, 1872.

HAHNEMAN, the founder of the Homœopathic school, was one day consulted by a wealthy English lord. The doctor listened patiently to the statement which the patient made to him. He then took a small vial, opened it, and held it under the lord's nose, "Smell! Well, you are cured!" The lord asked, in surprise: "How much do I owe you?" "One thousand francs," was the reply. The lord immediately pulled out a bank-note and held it under the doctor's nose; "Smell! Well, you are paid!"

THE Democratic committee of Bedford county, after trying the Crawford county system one year, by a vote of twenty to four have returned to the delegate system.

THE coal operators are already at work in preparing the prices for the coming season, fearing that if they leave things alone coal will be too cheap. They are manipulating that great and favored instrument, the big strike. One strike is now in progress, and it is hoped to extend this through the whole coal region. "If the movement to bring about a suspension in Lehigh and Wyoming fails a decline in the price of coal may be looked for;" and we may therefore confidently believe that this movement will not fail if the coal operators can help it.

NASBY.

A FRIEND OF MR. NASBY DIES, AND THE EX-REVEREND WRITES HIS OBITUARY—AN ACCOUNT OF THE LIFE AND ACTS OF MR. PATSEY McGROGGIN.

HARP UV ERIN SLOON,
SIXTH WARD, NOO YORK,
May 18, 1870.

A blite hez fallen onto the Sixth Ward! Last nite at precisely 8 o'clock this mornin, ez near ez we kin learn, Patsey McGroggin departed this life. Dimocrisy' hez lost a piller—my bar a constant and prompt payin customer, and Father McGrath a parishioner wich never refoozed his mite to religious purposes when his financhel operashens hed proved successful. Patsey McGroggin is gone! He met his fate in attemptin to get out uv the area winder uv the house uv a bloatid aristocrat in the upper part uv the city. Patsey and a friend uv hizzen known ez English Bill wuz in the house, when owin to alarm wich wuz made they became aware that they wuz considered in the lite uv introoders. They hed gathered together a pocket-book, some gold watches, silver plate and sich, and wuz attemptin to leave the house quietly, when Patsey wuz seezed by the injoodishus proprietor thereof.—Patsey, in self-defence, knockt him down with a billy, when the wretch levelled a pistil at him and shot him ded. And not content with this he procoored the arrest uv English Bill on the charge uv burglary! Thus two uv my customers is cut off at one stroke!

Patsey McGroggin wuz born in County Clare, Ireland, in the year 1833. He made his appearance in public life in London in 1844, where he wuz arrested ez a pickpocket, and by a prejoodist joory, wich bleeved the statement uv a citizen who swore he saw him pick a pockit, he wuz sentenced to six months. On his release Patsey went into partnership with a distinguished and brilyant burglar, and after a variety uv advenchers, he found hisself in Botany Bay, his goin there insted uv bein hung in Englend bein a inscrutable mystery wich he hisself wuz never able to solve.

But Botany Bay wuz not destined to hold him. Killin a guard or two he made his escape on a whaler, and landid, uv course, in the city uv Noo York, wich he knew wuz mostly settled, and entirely controlled, by that class uv his countrymen wich wood sympathize with one in his sitooashen. Here his career wuz a brilyant one. He immejitly jined the Dimocratic party to wich his instinks naterally led him, and he proved a useful and active member thereof.

He commenced first ez a humble repeater, but the activity he manifested soon made him a marked man. One day he voted twenty eight times, and once he performed the astroundin feat uv votin six times at the same polls! His knoledge uv pugilism, and his skill in the yoose uv the club, soon put him at the head uv a clan strong enuff to bid the poleece defiance, and his fucher wuz ashoored.

Dubbin politics with burglary he made a handsome livin by his own efforts. He wuz second in more than twenty prize fights, and wuz an enthoosiastic patron uv the rat pit. His pet tarrier, Dublin Pet, trained by him, it will be remembered, won the match agin Yaller McKee's dog Terror, wich resulted in a shindy between the principals wich naturally resulted in McKee's decease, for wich accident and homycide jist afterward he served two years in Sing Sing. An important election okkurrin, and his services bein needed, wuz pardoned out.

Ez the recognized head uv the Sixth Ward Throat Slashers, uv course he held many poshishens uv honor and profit. Patsey and his friends carried Connecticut three or four years ago, and ez a reward wuz put onto the School Board, Father McGrath backin his claims, and agreein to sign his (Patsey's) name whenever it wuz necessary. Shortlyafterward hewuz elected Alderman, he hed a contrack for street cleanin, wuz made keeper uv the butts uv four kets in one uv the Armories, and was, last year, a member uv the Legislacher. This last poshishen didn't soot him, as the other members from the city, knowin the intricks uv legislachen better, yoosed to get his vote freekently without payin for it. We likt best wuz contraks for street cleanin. 'Twuz he wich taught me the mysteries uv that bisnis. He wunst hed to bid close agin an unsoffistikatid contracter, who spozed that streets reely hed to be cleaned, and I wuz surprized at the low figger he took it at.

"Patsey," sez I, "yoo'l loose money on that contrack. It'll cost more to do the work than you get for it."

"It is cussed low," he replied, "but ez we don't never do the work at all I kin live at it, ef I don't hev to divide too much."

Patsey wuz an ardent friend uv Ameriky and its instooshns, partikerly the Dimocratic party. When he wuz put onto the Skool Board, and wuz at the same time in the Legislacher, his heart filled over with love for his adopted country, and he wuz not backerd in expressin it.

"In wat other country than Ameriky, and in wat other party than the Dimokratic," sed he, sobbin with emoshen, "cood I hev attained such grandjer! Why, hed I stayed in London I wound have been hung ten years ago."

Patsey's controllin pashun wuz an intense abidin hatrid uv Englend. He wuz a member uv all the Fenian Circles, and collected more money for freein Ireland from the tyrannicle rool uv England than any man in Noo York. He allus wept when he thot uv the oppreshun the Irish wuz under. But this feelin wuz eclipst by his hatrid uv the nigger, as an evidence uv wich I mite menshun, that a circle uv wich he wuz a member actilly appropriated a thousand dollars wich they hed raised to free Ireland, to a fund to put down anti-slavery agitashen in this country. Patsey hisself seriously contemplated at one time goin South, that he mite hev a legal rite to kill a nigger. But he thought better uv it. He cood do it jist as safely in Noo York. He led the Throat Slashers in the famous riots uv 1863, and his was the hand wich put the torch to the nigger orphan asylum; with his own good rite hand he beat out the branes uv two niggers, and wept becoz two more that he hed in a corner escaped him.

His death is lamented by all uv the frekenters uv my hoose. Hed he lived he wood hev been put on the Police Board and the appintments he would hev controlled wood hev saved his friends and partners a great deal uv trouble and molestashen. Hed he bin on that Board English Bill wood not be now languishin in a Basteel. The devoshun uv his friends touched me. It bein intimatid that money wood be required to hev the proper masses sed for the repose uv his sperit, every one uv his friends rushed out immejitly to procoor enuff to do it handsome. Two uv em succeeded in goin through a drunken countryman which strayed into this vicinity, and gettin a watch wich they pawned, and others for this pious purpose garroted a man within a square uv Broadway. Patsey's fooher is therefore ashoored.

Out uv respeck for the deceast I shut my bar and put crape onto the door for jest an hour, wich wuz as much great ez I cood afford at that time.

Peace to his ashes! It is perhaps ez well that he went hents. The Fifteenth Amendment is a reality and hed he stayed he mite hev bin compelled to affiliate with niggers, instid uv bustin uv em, and I doubt whether his nacher cood hev endoored so sudden and severe a strain. It is perhaps weel for him that he died when he did, partikelerly ez he hed jest paid his bill at my bar. He goodent hev gone at a better time.

Dr. Patterson, of Philadelphia, delivering the address.—The difficulties in Dickinson College have been satisfactorily adjusted, and the order of suspension has been recalled. The Sophomore and Junior classes will resume their connection with the Institution.

WASHINGTON.—A little child of Mr. Cyrus Hickman, living at Newcomer's Mill, Benevola, met with a distressing accident on Thursday of last week, which resulted fatally. Mrs. Hickman had been in the garden planting beans, &c., and the child, in playing with the beans, got one in its windpipe, where it lodged. Dr. Lovell was called in, but was unable to give relief, and after suffering about half an hour, death came to the little child's relief.

YORK.—A child of Frederick Smeltzer of Lower Windsor township, was severely burned recently, while laying in a cradle. It is supposed one of the larger children set fire to the cradle.—The First National Bank of York has declared a semi-annual dividend of 5 per cent. clear of taxes. The York National, York County National and First National of York have each declared a semi annual dividend of 6 per cent.—On the 10th inst., the farm of Wm. Jones, deceased, in Manchester township, 98 acres and 40 parches, was sold at public sale for $25,839.50, being $263 per acre, to Daniel Klinedinst.—The following gentlemen have been elected officers of the Hanover Branch Railroad Company: President, Capt. A. W. Eichelberger; Directors, David M. Myers, Henry C. Schriver, Joseph Dellone, Reuben Young, David Wortz and Henry Wirt.—P. H. Bittinger, Assistant U. S. Assessor, of Hanover, with his son 8 years old, was thrown from a buggy on the Abbottstown road last week, the horse having frightened and run off; neither were seriously injured.—A son of David Rudesill, deceased, of Heidelburg township, aged 8 years, while playing with a Corn Sheller on Sunday had one of his hands so badly lacerated as to require the amputation of two fingers.

CHILD LOST.—On Wednesday, the 4th inst., a little child of Stephen G. Wright of Broadtop township, about two and a half years of age, was lost in the mountains between Wells Valley and the Village of Coaldale, and wandered about for twenty-one hours before it was found. It appears that Mr. Wright was working near Coaldale, about a mile and a half from home, and had taken two of the older children with him in the morning, intending to send them back with a package for their mother. Being gone longer than usual, the mother became anxious about them, and started out to meet them, leaving the little child above mentioned and an older one in charge of the house. She was hardly out of sight, when these two youngsters started after her and had gone some distance from the house when the older one concluded to go back, leaving the other alone in the road. In due time the mother returned with the boys and found her youngest child missing. Upon inquiry, she learned the above particulars, and immediately instituted a search, which was diligently kept up till five o'clock in the afternoon. Every nook and corner was examined, but no trace of the child could be found. At this time a message was sent to the father and the news communicated to Coaldale. The good citizens of that town, merchants, mechanics, miners, laborers, and all, joined in the hunt, traveling the country far and wide until midnight, when they adjourned only to reform the line early in the morning. The next morning Mr. B. F. Thomas, while on his way home for refreshments, found the child sitting by the trunk of a fallen tree about one mile from where the parents live, calling for its mother. He accordingly picked it up and carried it to its mother. We leave our readers to imagine the joy occasioned by this intelligence. The child appears to be none the worse off for this bit of romance, notwithstanding it had the whooping cough at the time, and was exposed to very inclement weather.—Bedford Inquirer.

CURIOUS ELOPEMENT.—The Rockville (Md) Sentinel gives the following particulars of a recent curious elopement in that neighborhood:

"It is currently stated that, not many days since, a young lady, belonging to a highly respectable and well to do family, resident in Cracklin district, Montgomery county, left her home and eloped with a negro man, an employee on her mother's farm. The young lady, it appears, called on her mother, who is a widow, for a supply of funds for the purchase of spring apparel in Baltimore, whither it has been her custom to repair for that purpose, and who was soon taken, by her uncle, to the railroad station nearest her home, ostensibly for the purpose of taking the train for Baltimore. Sometime after her departure it was discovered that the negro man had also left, and certain whisperings coming to the ear of the mother, she immediately sent to Baltimore to ascertain whether her daughter was stopping there with any of the relatives she had been in the habit of visiting. Too great surprise and grief, she learned that the young lady had not been at any of their houses lately. Since her departure some of the negro man's associates in the neighborhood have stated that they heard him boast that the young lady intended to elope with him to Massachusetts, and marry him. From all the circumstances detailed to us, there seems but little doubt that the two met somewhere, made their way to Massachusetts and probably, ere this, are married.

A Frederick paper states that the parties were married in that city last week."

A SAD ACCIDENT.—The Lancaster Intelligencer of Saturday last says, a most distressing accident occurred in Conestoga Centre, on Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock, which resulted in the death of a little girl, about 2½ years old, the youngest child of Mr. Ulrich Strickler. While Mrs. S. had for a few moments left the house to go into the lot where Mr. S. was at work, the washerwoman discovered the clothes of the little girl to be on fire, and gave the alarm but before Mr. S. arrived on the spot her clothes were nearly all burned off of her. He immediately extinguished the fire by holding her under the spout of the pump, and pumping water on her, but her face, arms, and her body were burned in such a terrible manner that she died the next morning at 4 o'clock. It is not known how her clothes took fire, but it is supposed that she either got some matches, or went to the fire on the hearth of the wash-house, which had not been entirely extinguished, there having been no fire in the stove at the time.

IN the Southern Methodist Episcopal Conference on Saturday, a resolution was adopted declining the proposal for a union with the Northern Church, but expressing the hope "that the day may soon come when proper Christian sentiments and fraternal relations of the great branches of the Northern and Southern Methodist Episcopal Church shall be permanently established."

The summer months will very soon be fairly upon us, and with their sultry weather and long days of toil. It is the season when nature can do little in recuperating our exhausted strength, and when we need some means to fortify our physique against the dangers arising from the universal prevalence of sickness. The only true safeguard is that pure, mild, unadulterated tonic and invigorator, HISHLER'S HERB BITTERS, which is indorsed and recommended by the highest authority and numbered thousands of persons in every city, town and village in the country. Gettysburg, Friday, May 20, 1870.

GOOD FISHING.—Last week Messrs. Hoppes and Bell, of the Gettysburg Springs Hotel, caught 150 trout in the neighborhood of Graffenburg.

ACCIDENT.—We learn that on Tuesday last William Patterson, jr., of Cumberland township, while assisting at the raising of Mr. John Spangler's new barn, fell about fifteen feet to the barn floor, sustaining considerable injury.

NEW BARNS.—Michael Fiscel, William Cownover and John Spangler are putting up large bank barns in Mountjoy township; James McCullough another in Cumberland township, and Cornelius Hartsel another in Highland township, near "Glenwood Mills."

IMPROVEMENT.—The Sisters of the Sacret Heart, who have control of St. Joseph's Female Academy, at McSherrystown, contemplate making extensive improvements to their beautiful and capacious edifice this summer. The main building is to be enlarged and improved by the addition of two full stories, making it a four-story building.

BURGLARIES.—We learn that on the night of the 6th inst., four hams, a lot of apples, pies, a bottle of wine, and a small sum of money, were stolen from the residence of Samuel J. Brady, near Abbottstown. The next night a roll of 12 pounds of butter were stolen from the huckster wagon of Mr. Klinepeter, in Conowago township. Detective Rouzer was sent for to look up the thieves, and arrested Jacob Harman as one of the guilty party, who has been committed to jail.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—We learn that on Wednesday last, about noon, as a freight train, on the Northern Central Railroad, was passing Freeland's station, two miles below New Freedom, a young man by the name of Frank Eaton, made an attempt to jump on the train, slipped and fell on the track, a number of Coal hoppers passing over both his legs, crushing them in a frightful manner. The young man survived but a short time, in agony and unconscious, and died at 4 o'clock the same day. He had been married only about three weeks ago. Intemperance is said to have been the cause. This is another warning to those who indulge in the use of the wine cup.

THE GAME LAWS.—A Supplement to the General Game Law was passed at the last session of the Legislature, prohibiting the shooting of Deer between the 20th of December and the 1st of September—the shooting of Woodcocks between the 15th of November and the 15th of September—and the killing of gray or English Snipes between the 15th of November and the 1st of September. But this supplement does not affect Adams county, so far as concerns Woodcocks—a special act having been passed for Adams, York and Franklin counties, limiting the prohibition to the period been September 1 and June 20. This special act we gave in full in the STAR AND SENTINEL of April 15. Under its provisions Woodcocks can be shot after the 20th of June in this county.

H. B. RAILROAD.—The Hanover Branch Railroad Company has published its 18th annual report, making a most satisfactory financial exhibit. The total revenue of the road from all sources during the year, was $87,325.24, and the total operating expenses $48.704.10, leaving the handsome balance of $38,621.14. The total number of passengers carried over the road during the year was, through 25,911; way, 11,145. During the year $11,563, of the surplus earnings were paid out as dividends and $16,000 on stock subscription towards the construction of the Frederick and Pennsylvania Line Railroad Company. $12,403.20 are put down as being received for working the Gettysburg Railroad, and $2,234.55 for working the Littlestown Railroad.

COURT DOINGS.—The Jury, in the case of Stombaugh vs Shireman and Kiine reported last week as on trial when we went to press, rendered a verdict on Saturday afternoon for the defendant, John Kline, Shireman not having been served with process.

The only additional case disposed of was a Mechanics Lien case—Jacob Reily, now for use of David Wills, vs. The Trustees of Pennsylvania College, owners, and John R. Tuner, contractor. Verdict for Plaintiff for $96.88.

In the case of Cornelius Dougherty vs. George Dittenhafer, motion to set aside appraisement under the $300 act, after argument, the Court dismissed the motion.

The Court granted tavern license to Conrad Wagner, of Mountpleasant township. The application of Geo. W. Rex, of Idaville, was postponed to the 24th.

CLASS EXERCISES.—The Exercises of the Class of 1870 of Pennsylvania College will take place in the College campus on Wednesday next, May 25, at 6 o'clock, P. M., should the weather be favorable. If the weather prove unfavorable the exercises will come off on Thursday evening. These "Class-day" exercises are common among the New England Colleges, where they form an important epoch in College life. It is only within a year or two that they have been introduced here. Last year the exercises were exceedingly interesting and characterized by marked good order. From our knowledge of the present Senior Class we have no doubt the exercises next week will do no dishonor to the occasion. Besides speaking by the Class representatives, there will be music, and an illumination of the campus after dark. Citizens are cordially invited to be present.

TRAVELING HUMBUGS.—An exchange remarks that the pleasant weather has put the itinerant nostrum venders on the "move," and every few evenings we may expect to see our public square taken up by a "cure all" blower of some kind. It is somewhat astonishing that people will persist in patronizing these adventurers, when we have reliable drug stores in our midst, where genuine goods can be bought without danger of imposition. Every dollar spent with these peripatetic loafers is just so much money thrown away, besides encouraging a system of travelling mendicancy. During the last week our public square was thus occupied for several nights, the glare of torches and instrumental music attracting large crowds, who were entertained with clownish wit, vulgar jests, and low profanity. The Borough authorities would do a good thing if they were to interdict all similar exhibitions as public nuisances.

VISITORS.—The Rev. Drs. Arnot and Blakie, of Edinburg, Scotland, Commissioners from the Free Church of Scotland to the Presbyterian General Assembly, which meets in Philadelphia this week, paid a visit to Gettysburg on Tuesday, desiring of seeing the great battle-field of the war. At night a meeting was held in Christ Church, (Lutheran,) both gentlemen delivering interesting addresses. Prof. Blakie at some length explained the origin and present status of the Free Church of Scotland, and the nature of the mission of himself and colleague to this country. Dr. Arnot, in the course of his address, referred to the unkind feelings that were engendered between Great Britain and the United States, which he insisted was largely due to misconception growing out of the noisy demonstrations of English politicians—that back of these demonstrations, among the masses, there was deep-seated sympathy with our people in their efforts to save the life of the nation. Drs. Arnot and Blakie were accompanied by Rev. Dr. Smyth and John M. Stevenson, Esq., of Baltimore, and during their stay in Gettysburg were the guests of Prof. Stoever.

RE-DEDICATION.—The Philomathæn Society of Pennsylvania College, recently re-fitted their Hall with new carpet, furniture, window shades and curtains, and frescoed the walls, at considerable outlay of money. The hall presents a beautiful and attractive appearance, and the membership can well feel proud of it. On Saturday afternoon the Hall was thrown open, and a number of ladies and gentlemen honored the occasion with their presence to witness the re-dedication exercies, which were exceedingly interesting. We annex the programme:

Everything passed off pleasantly. The young gentlemen put forward by the Society as its representatives on this occasion did themselves much credit. In correctness of elocution, maturity of thought, originality of conception, chasteness of style, we have rarely heard these performances equalled, never excelled by Society exercises. The debate was well sustained, both sides manifesting considerable adroitness in developing their arguments, particularly in the ex tempore replies. The music was a combination of vocal and instrumental and of a high order.

NO REBELLION.—We notice in the despatches of the Associated Press the announcement of a "rebellion" among the students of Pennsylvania College, which is incorrect. Three members of the Junior Class were suspended last week for some offence in one of the class rooms, and although some little trouble grew out of it for the time being, the Junior Class, so far from "rebelling," have been regularly attending recitations and observing all the requirements of the Institution. Both the Faculty and Students have acted with marked prudence, and the difficulty has been satisfactorly adjusted. The friends of Pennsylvania College at a distance need have no apprehensions of trouble.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—The family referred to in the annexed extract from the Baltimore Sun of the 5th inst., moved to Baltimore recently from New Oxford:

"On Tuesday afternoon, about 5 o'clock, the son, aged 8 years, and daughter, 12 years old, of Mrs. Beck, a widow, residing at the corner of Madison street, while engaged in picking up chips in an upper story of a new building in course of erection on Madison street, opposite the penitentiary, by a misstep fell through the opening of the staircase to the lower floor, 25 or 30 feet below. The girl died about midnight, from the effects of the injuries received. The condition of the boy was yesterday regarded as critical. The boy fell in endeavoring to save his sister."

BANVARD'S HOLY LAND.—A beautiful and valuable exhibition will be given at Agricultural Hall on Tuesday afternoon and evening May 24th. It comprises large and accurate views in Jerusalem, Nazareth, at the Jordan, &c., and copies of the most celebrated paintings known in the world. This is no humbug, it comes endorsed by the Clergy and Press of Harrisburg and Lancaster, where it has been the last week, and we trust a full house will visit here.

REMOVED.—Jacob F. Thomas, Agent for the "Howe Sewing Machine," has removed from Wolf's Clothing Store to his new room on York street, next door to N. Codori & Son. Purchasers will bear in mind that the "Howe" is sold on a trial of its merits. Orders solicited. Machines delivered any place in the county. Instruction given gratis. Oil, Needles, &c., kept on hand. tf

☞It is an Established Fact, that Consumption can be cured; but it is far better to prevent the cruel disease from fastening itself on the system, by the timely use of a remedy like Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. This standard preparation will speedily cure a cough or cold, and even Consumption often yields to its great power. 1t

☞If you desire a sweet breath that will not be offensive to those with whom you associate, use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and cure your Catarrh. The proprietor offers $500 for a case of Catarrh, which he cannot cure. Sold by druggists or send sixty cents to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and get it by mail. 1t

COUGHS AND COLDS.—Those who are suffering from Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, &c., should try "Brown's Bronchial Troches," a simple remedy, which is in almost every case effectual. The Troches have been tested by time, and pronounced universally superior to all other articles for the same purpose. 1t

ALWAYS AHEAD.—Capt. NORRIS is determined not to be outdone by rivals, and hence has been brushing up his "Head-Quarters," on the corner of the Diamond and Chambersburg street, (Arnold's corner,) where he has on hand the largest and best assortment of Ready-made Clothing of all kinds, for Spring and Summer use, ever opened in Gettysburg, and which he is offering at astonishing low figures. His stock of Straw Hats embrace all styles, qualities, and prices. April 22-tf.

☞Ladies desire what men admire. And this little thing is beauty. What do we say is beautiful? A transparent complexion and a luxuriant head of hair. What will produce these? Hagan's Magnolia Balm will make any lady of thirty appear but twenty; and Lyon's Kathairon will keep every hair in its place, and make it grow like the April grass. It prevents the hair from turning gray, eradicates Dandruff, and is the finest Hair Dressing in the world, and at only half ordinary cost. If you want to get rid of Sallowness, Pimples, Ring-marks, Moth-patches, etc., don't forget the Magnolia Balm, ladies. may6lm

THE RICE DIVORCE SUIT for fraud in age, is causing great excitement in Boston. It should warn young men not to marry in haste. Rice is but 22, his bride 37. He swears that she made him believe she was but his own age, by using Magnolia Balm upon her face, neck and hands. Poor youth. He probably found her elbows weren't quite so soft and pretty. Ought Hagan to be indicted? We know of many similar cases. This Balm gives a most wonderful pearly and natural complexion, to which we don't object. We like pretty women. To finish the picture, they should use Lyon's Kathairon upon the hair. With pearly chin, rosy cheeks, and soft, luxuriant tresses, they become irresistible. April 15-1m ATTENTION FARMERS.—Try the celebrated Patent Elastic Rubber lined Collars, Saddles and Pads. ONE of the most singular sights growing out of the war is a continuous line of peach trees of nearly fifty miles in length, around Petersburg, and extending toward Richmond. They are growing from the breastworks thrown up by the rebel army, and are the only legacy left by the poor fellows who were on the advance line within one hundred yards of our forces. Having eaten the fruit while on picket duty, they cast the seed aside, and now they appear in one continuous line of forty-five miles of beautiful trees, which yielded an abundant crop the last year.

WE have at last the complete returns of the French plesbicitum. Napoleon's victory is as complete as he could desire—7,336,434 votes out of 8,897,143, the whole number polled, being in favor of the empire. The unanimity of all the national elections which have taken place in France is remarkable, and the seven millions who voted for the plesbicitum simply repeat the conduct of the seven millions who voted for the establishment of the empire. The recent disorders in Paris seem to be ended. On Thursday the Emperor and Empress rode through the disturbed district and met only with demonstrations of loyalty and affection.

ANOTHER Sam Patch has appeared in Buffalo in the person of a young man named Frank Thorne, who purposes to jump from Suspension Bridge into the river at Niagara Falls, on the 13th of August next. The distance from the bridge to the river is 190 feet. A sufficient number of seats will be provided to accommodate several thousand people, which will be erected on both shores. Ten thousand dollars has been promised to the adventurous young man for the undertaking.

A KNOXVILLE (Tenn.) papers lifts the veil a little from Andrew Johnson's retirement. His ex-Accidency is said to have saved up a comfortable fortune from his many offices. Shortly before leaving the White House he purchased a valuable farm of three hundred and fifty acres, and erected extensive flouring mills on it. His son-in-law, ex-Senator Patterson, resides on this farm, which is situated near Greenville, and runs the mills. Johnson has lately bought also a whole brick block in Greenville, and is expected to start a bank.

VICE President Colfax's young son was baptized on Saturday night by Rev. Drs. Newman and Eddy. President Grant and family were present and the President presented the young Schuyler with a very handsome silver cup.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody.—Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For DYSPEPSIA or INDIGESTION, LISTLESSNESS, LANGUOR and LOSS OF APPETITE, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For LIVER COMPLAINT and its various symptoms, BILIOUS HEADACHE, SICK HEADACHE, JAUNDICE or GREEN SICKNESS, BILIOUS COLIC and BILIOUS FEVERS, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For DYSENTERY or DIARRHŒA, but one mild dose is generally required.

For RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GRAVEL, PALPITATION OF THE HEART, PAIN IN THE SIDE, BACK and LOINS, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For DROPSY and DROPSICAL SWELLINGS they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For SUPPRESSION a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

THE GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.

MORE THAN 500,000 PERSONS Bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion, or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

☞Send for a circular.

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of POOR RUM, WHISKEY, PROOF SPIRITS, AND REFUSE LIQUORS, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true medicine, made from the native Roots and Herbs of California, FREE FROM ALL ALCOHOLIC STIMULANTS.—They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For INFLAMMATORY and CHRONIC RHEUMATISM, and GOUT, DYSPEPSIA, or INDIGESTION, BILIOUS, REMITTENT, and INTERMITTENT FEVERS, DISEASES OF THE BLOOD, LIVER, KIDNEYS, and BLADDER, these BITTERS have been most successful. SUCH DISEASES are caused by VITIATED BLOOD, which is generally produced by derangement of the DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

In Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, these Bitters have no equal. For full directions read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

ROSADALIS

THE GREAT AMERICAN HEALTH RESTORER, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women, and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and many thousands of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis; send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health Book, or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore, says;

I take pleasure in recommending your ROSADALIS as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in a case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine.—The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of Scrofula and Secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the Blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreesboro', Tenn., says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my whole body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

SEED POTATOES.

A correspondent of the Practical Farmer writes as follows: As the season for selecting seed potatoes for spring planting is approaching, I thought that the results of some experimenting with a few varieties, might interest some of the numerous readers of your valuable monthly. I will begin with the

EARLY ROSE.

In the spring of 1868, I purchased from B. K. Bliss one pound of this variety, which cut into forty-eight single eyes, and planted in the garden with no extra cultivation, yielded me eighty-two pounds of fine large potatoes. I found them to keep remarkably well through the winter, showing no signs of rot.

In the early part of May, 1869, I planted this product in the field in rows, set about one foot apart in the row, and in August took up forty bushels of fine clean good shaped potatoes; which are keeping well so far, showing no indications of rot. In taking them up, I had them placed at once in the cart (the pickers following the plow,) and stored in the cellar, without sunburning, which I think is one of the causes of rot.

In preparing the ground for potatoes, I always manure it thoroughly, and plow the manure in and harrow well, and mark out the rows three feet apart. I prefer this plan to the old method of manuring in the row, as the contact of the manure with the potato has a tendency to cause it to rot in the ground.

CLIMAX.

In the spring of 1869, I planted one pound of Climax, which yielded me over forty-five pounds of fine handsome potatoes; also the same time, one pound of from which I obtained only twenty-five pounds. I gave these last two varieties no extra cultivation—my object not being to raise an extra crop, but to test what they would do under fair cultivation—another year's trial will be required to decide on their merits as field crops.

I also planted and cultivated, in the same manner, four pounds of

from which I obtained 22-4 bushels.—These are not a large, but are a remarkably fine eating potatoe. I cooked a few of them when about half grown, and they were like little bags of meal. Also planted at the same time four pounds of VANDEVER.

These yielded me about two and one-half bushels of fair potatoes, but did not come up to my expectations.

For a late keeping potato, I found none superior to the

PINK EYE RUSTY COAT.

While most other varieties have sprouted and shriveled in the spring, this one still remains hard and firm; it yields well, always turns out of the ground clean—and in five years that I have cultivated it, I have never seen a sign of rot. I find this variety to yield much better from cut sets—unless in a very dry season they grow on until the frost kills the tops.

THE HARRISONS

gave me a remarkable fine yield last year; but as I did not measure the amount planted, I am not able to give the product per bushel. Some of my neighbors complain of the Harrisons rotting; so far there is no rot in mine, which I attribute to their being taken into the cellar as soon as dug.

I would recommend the last named varieties for late planting, and Early Rose for early use.

A DISCOVERY ABOUT CORN.—In this thinking and observant age, new ideas and discoveries are being constantly made known, many of which, it is true, are never afterwards heard of, while others pass into the treasure of established fact, when their merit has been proven. We have just met with the following paragraph in an exchange:

"An intelligent and reliable neighbor of ours, who has for many years been making experiments with corn, has discovered an importance and value in replanted corn which is quite novel and worthy of publication. We have always thought that replanted corn was of very little consequence, but this gentleman says 'it is of so much consequence he replants whether it is needed or not—or rather, he plants two or three weeks after the crop is planted, a hill about every fifteenth row each way.' He says: 'If the weather becomes dry during the filling time, the silk, and tassel both become dry and dead. In this condition, if it should become seasonable, the silk revives and renews its growth, but the tassel does not recover. Then, for want of pollen, the new silk is unable to fill the office for which it was designed. The pollen from the replanted corn is then ready to supply the silk, and the filling is completed.' He says nearly all the abortive ears, so common in all corn crops, is caused by the want of pollen, and that he has known ears to double their size in the second filling."—Western Rural.

READING FOR FARMER'S BOYS.—An intelligent and thrifty farmer says:—"But for the co-operation of my boys, I should have failed. I worked hard, and so did they. The eldest is nearly twenty-one, and while other boys in the neighborhood, younger, have left their parents, mine have stuck to me when I most needed their services. I attribute this result to the fact that I have tried to make home pleasant for them. I have furnished them with attractive and useful reading; and when night comes, and the day's labor is ended, instead of running to the railroad station and adjoining towns, they gather around the great lamp, and become absorbed in books and papers."

Such is substantially the testimony a farmer, who has know how hard the struggle for a footing on free soil, without capital, is, and how valuable and comparatively cheap are the aids which good reading brings to him.

PLOW UNDER CLOVER.—Farmers cannot manure more cheaply or successfully than by plowing down green clover. This is especially true with farms located so far away from cities or towns as to make the manures obtained from them expensive. A poor field of grass will not pay the expenses of converting it into hay, but may lay the foundation of a good crop of wheat, by plowing it down. It is not well to take everything that grows off the soil, and put nothing on.

A MODEL FARMER'S WIFE.—Mrs. Alfred Barton, of Dexter, Maine, has reared a family of nine children, mostly boys, and done her own work with the help of members of the family.—She has made 11½ tons of butter, and 3½ tons of cheese. Her husband has most successfully managed a large farm—for what man could not be successful with the help of such a "guide wife?"

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or traveling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

THE WORLD,

DODGES' OHIO AND BUCKEYE

Reapers and Mowers.

A careful examination of these machines will commence any one of their superior merits over all others, in strength, durability, ease of draft, and reliability for work, on all kinds of ground, and in every variety of grass and grain. Confident of this we invite those in want of a good machine to examine for themselves before purchasing elsewhere.

These machines can be sold as Naked Mowers—REAPERS as Hand Rake, Self-Rake, or Dropper.—Two different sizes: No. 1 Machine, with two cutter Bars and three Knives, cutting five and a half feet in grain and four feet eight inches in grass; No. 2, cutting four feet six inches.

We have that confidence in these machines that we are willing to let those wanting a machine test them with any other they may wish, and keep the one that gives most satisfaction. DODGES' AUTOMAN SELF-RAKE has given such general satisfaction that we consider it the best Self-Rake out, and is attached to no other machine except the Dodge Machine, the Ohio and Buckeye patent.

For the benefit of those wanting machines we would refer them to a few of those to whom we have sold the last season, viz:

Also, WIRE TOOTH HAY RAKES, including the celebrated Brandt Rake, and Self-discharging Rakes. Also, PLOUGHS, FANNING MILLS, AND FARM IMPLEMENTS GENERALLY.

Persons wishing to examine machines will find them at the warehouse of JOSEPH WIBLE & SONS, Gettysburg, Pa., or at the residence of the subscriber, 2 miles from Gettysburg, on the Harrisburg road. Persons wanting Circulars will address the subscriber, Gettysburg, Pa.

STILL AHEAD!

HOFFHEINS'

REAPER & MOWER,

One of the Greatest Machines of the Age,

IS superior to any other Machine now in use, and will excel any that will ever be introduced, having been thoroughly tried and given general satisfaction. I would now inform all those who intend purchasing Machines to call and examine for themselves. This Machine is noted particularly to excel all other machines in strength, durability, ease of draft, and reliability of work, in all kinds of grass and grain.—It cuts lodged grain admirably, which is a great item in Machines to a farmer. It can be used as a hand rake as well as a self-raker. It cuts 5 feet 2 inches in grain; 4 feet 10 inches in grass; has a steel cutter bar, with wrought iron guards; it can be used as a Single Mower as well as a Combined Machine.

A full trial of the Machine can be had.

Also, SHIREMAN'S SELF-DISCHARGING HORSE RAKE, and the great and well-known BRANT RAKE, the best rakes ever introduced. We would also call your attention to the IRON DOUBLE SHOVEL PLOUGH, wrought iron frame, very light and strong, steel shovels, easily adjusted to run shallow or deep, and is neatly and tastefully made.

ALSO, THE KEELER AND EXCELSIOR FANNING MILL, the old Chambersburg Fan improved, for many years a great favorite among the farmers of Pennsylvania. It is large and strong, has two cockle screens, and warranted to work perfectly.

Also all kinds of FARMING IMPLEMENTS always on hand.

Any person wishing to examine these machines can see them at the Battle-field Hotel or at my residence, 3 miles from Gettysburg, between the Taneytown road and the Baltimore pike.
